

Websites for Further Research

Legal Rights of Terrorists

- <http://www.unodc.org/unodc/en/commissions/CCPCJ/> — This is the home site of the Committee on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice. It has information about the committee and its goals and mandates.
- <http://unbisnet.un.org> — This website contains a catalog of all UN resolutions and voting records.
- <http://www.un.org/en/documents/udhr/index.shtml> — This is the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.
- <http://www2.ohchr.org/english/law/ccpr.htm> — This is the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights.
- <http://www.state.gov/s/ct/rls/other/des/123085.htm> — The United States has a list of terrorist organizations from 2010.
- <http://www.state.gov/s/ct/rls/crt/2009/> — The United States State Department offers a 2009 Country Report on Terrorism.

Organized Crime and the Drug Trade

- <http://www.unodc.org/unodc/en/treaties/CTOC/index.html> — This part of the UNODC site has a link to a page about the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime and its Protocols.
- www.unodc.org — This is the main website for the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime.
- <http://www.interpol.int/Public/Drugs/default.asp> — The Interpol website contains information about the drug trade around the world and outlines Interpol's goals.

- <http://www.wilsoncenter.org/subsites/ccpdc/pubs/light/11.pdf> — This page explains weapons and international law enforcement.
- <http://www.unodc.org/unodc/en/about-unodc/speeches/2010-03-19-lords-of-war.html> — This page on the UNODC site explains how the UN might be able to disrupt the flow of arms into Africa.
- <http://www.state.gov/p/inl/rls/rm/143406.htm> — The United States Department of State discusses up-to-date efforts to prevent trafficking.
- <http://www.unidir.org/pdf/ouvrages/pdf-1-92-9045-147-5-en.pdf> — Chapter Five of this publication discusses the traceability of small arms and light weapons. This has good information that will help you come up with solutions.